FOSCARINI

DESCRIPTION

It was 1990 when Foscarini, still a small company just breaking into the contemporary design panorama, presented a blown glass lamp born from an encounter with designer Rodolfo Dordoni who reinterpreted the classic abat-jour in a new spirit. That lamp was called Lumiere and was an immediate international success story which continued over time and found its way into an infinity of spaces with its sophisticated elegance and cosy light. On its 25th anniversary, a special edition of Lumiere is coming out making it even more unique and precious. The blown glass diffuser has been given a special mirror-effect metallic finish which matches its unmistakeable tripod shape.
